governments of many countries consider the electrification of individual passenger transport as a suitable strategy to decrease oil dependency and reduce transport related carbon dioxide (CO₂) and air pollutant emissions. however, battery electric vehicles (BEVs) and plug in hybrid electric vehicles (PHEVs) have been more expensive than their conventional counterparts and suffer from relatively short electric driving ranges which still hampers the market potential of these vehicles. despite persisting shortfalls, mechanisms such as technological learning and economics of scale promise to improve the techno economic performance of BEVs and PHEVs. in the short to mid term here, the author seeks to obtain insight into the techno economic prospects of BEVs and PHEVs by i) establishing experience curves and ii) quantifying user costs and the costs of mitigating carbon dioxide and air pollutant emissions in a time series analysis. the analysis captures the situation in germany between 2010 and 2016.

the large quantity of waste generated from agricultural and food production remains a great challenge and an opportunity for the food industry as there are numerous risks associated with waste for humans, animals, and the environment. billions of dollars are spent on the treatment of agricultural and food waste. therefore, the utilisation of bioactive compounds isolated from waste not only could reduce the risks and the costs for treatment of waste but also could potentially add more value for agricultural and food production. this book provides comprehensive information related to extraction and isolation of bioactive compounds from agricultural and food production waste for utilisation in the food, cosmetic, and pharmaceutical industries. the topics range from an overview on challenges and opportunities related to agricultural and food waste, the bioactive compounds in the waste, the techniques used to analyse, extract, and isolate these compounds, to several specific examples for potential utilisation of waste from agricultural and food industry. this book also further discusses the potential of bioactives isolated from agricultural and food waste being re utilised in the food, cosmetic, and pharmaceutical industries. it is intended for students, academics, researchers, and professionals who are interested in or associated with agricultural and food waste.
