almost all museums hold photographs in their collections and museum professionals and their audiences engage with photographs in a myriad of ways yet despite some three decades of critical museology and photographic theory and an extensive debate on the politics of representation outside art museums almost no critical attention has been given specifically to the roles purposes and lives of these photographs within museums this book brings into focus the ubiquitous yet entirely unconsidered work that photographs are put to in museums the authors argument is that there is an economy of photographs in museums which is integral to the processes of the museum and integral to the understanding of museums the international contributors drawn from curators and academics reflect a range of visual and museological expertise after an introduction setting out the range of questions and problems the first part addresses broad curatorial strategies and ways of thinking about photographs in museums shifting the emphasis from curatorial practices and anxieties to the space of the gallery this is followed by a series of case studies of exhibitionary practices and the museum strategies that support them the third section focuses on the role of photographs in the museum articulation of difficult histories a final section addresses photograph collections in a digital environment new technologies and new media have transformed the management address and purposing in photographs in museums from cataloguing practices to streaming on social media these growing practices challenge both traditional hierarchies of knowledge in museums and the location of authority about photographs the volume emerges from photoclec a hera funded project on museums and the photographic legacy of the colonial past in a postcolonial and multicultural europe matthias smalbrugge compares modern images to plays without a script while they appear to refer to a deeper identity or reality it is ultimately the image itself that truly matters he argues that our modern society of images is the product of a destructive tendency in the christian notion of the image in general and augustine of hippo s in particular this insight enables him to decode our current scripts of image as we live in an increasingly visual culture we are constantly confronted with images that seem to exist without a deeper identity or reality but did this referential character really get lost over time smalbrugge first explores the roots of the modern image by analysing imagery what it represents and its moral state within the framework of platonic philosophy he then moves to the augustinian heritage in particular the soliloquies the confessions and the trinity where he finds valuable insights into images and memory he explores within the trinitarian framework the crossroads of a theology of grace and a theology based on neoplatonic views smalbrugge ultimately answers two questions what happened to the referential character of the image and can it be recovered
