the introduction to the depiction of the world which is ascribed to ptolemy the famous alexandrian mathematician and astronomer mid second century ad and was at least partially authored by him is generally known as the geography book 6 of the geography deals with assyria northern iraq east of the tigris media hamadan ray azerbaijan mazandaran susiana khuzestan persis fars parthia khorasan the carmanian desert dasht e lut arabia felix arabian peninsula carmania kirman hyrcania gurgan margiana merv bactriana balkh sogdiana region of bukhara and samarqand sakaland pamir region skythia serica china areia herat paropanisedai hindukush region drangiana sistian arachosia qandahar gedrosia baluchestan in its times ptolemy s description has enormously contributed to the western picture of the asiatic countries and regions listed above which remained unaltered till the times of marco polo but stayed influential for some centuries afterwards to the authors this seems reason enough to undertake a systematic and coherent treatment of this important piece of text from an interdisciplinary point of view starting with a new edition the present volume is the first complete critical edition of the book 6 it is not only based on the text of the 12 relevant manuscripts but it also includes the readings of some greek and latin side traditions and those of the maps which will be published and commented on in part 2 of the work the main object of the new edition of the text is to provide a reliable tool for research in this field this is aimed at by inserting notable variants in the constituted text in order to draw attention to them and by supplementing the english translation with one in german which is exclusively based on two manuscripts closely related to each other thus giving an informative picture of the instability of the tradition of the geographical and ethnographical names and coordinates this instability often hinders the editor of the text from mechanically applying the established formal principles of textual criticism and in such cases the reader is referred to the discussions of the respective entries in part 3 the commentary which will be dedicated to the philological historical and linguistic analysis of the geographical and ethnographical names and to their identification with historical and or modern equivalents
