What is the relationship between cinema and spectator? That is the central question for film theory. Renowned film scholars Thomas Elsaesser and Malte Hagener use this question to guide students through all of the major film theories from the classical period to today. In this insightful, engaging book, every kind of cinema and film theory imagines an ideal spectator and then imagines a certain relationship between the mind and body of that spectator and the screen using seven distinctive configurations of spectator and screen that move progressively from exterior to interior relationships. The authors retrace the most important stages of film theory from 1945 to the present, from neo-realist and modernist theories to psychoanalytic apparatus, phenomenological and cognitivist theories.

This essential core textbook provides an approachable and extensive introduction to film theory, written by two highly experienced senior lecturers bringing a fresh, contemporary and accessible approach to what is often perceived to be a challenging and old-fashioned area of film studies that requires time and effort to grasp. The text illustrates why theory is important and demonstrates how it can be applied in a meaningful way. The book's sixteen chapters are clear and comprehensive and provide an insight into the main areas of debate using clear definitions and explaining complex ideas succinctly. The ideal entry point for any student studying film, the book is designed for use on courses on film theory on undergraduate and postgraduate degree programmes within film, cinema, media and cultural studies. New to this edition: an expanded introduction plus a new chapter looking at adaptation; contemporary case studies exploring popular and topical films such as The Hunger Games (2012), Blue Is the Warmest Colour (2013) and The Lego Movie (2014); an expanded introduction plus a new chapter looking at adaptation; additional genre-based case study on the British gangster film; additional actor-based case study on Ryan Gosling; a greater focus throughout on the relevance of film theory to students undertaking practical film degrees and units.

The Routledge Encyclopedia of Film Theory is an international reference work representing the essential ideas and concepts at the centre of film theory from the beginning of the twentieth century to the beginning of the twenty-first. When first encountering film theory, students are often confronted with a dense, interlocking set of texts full of arcane terminology, inexact formulations, sliding definitions and abstract generalities. The Routledge Encyclopedia of Film Theory challenges these first impressions by aiming to make film theory accessible and open to new readers. Edward Branigan and Warren Buckland have commissioned over 50 scholars from around the globe to address the difficult formulations and propositions in each theory by reducing these difficult formulations to straightforward propositions. The result is a highly accessible volume that clearly defines and analyzes step by step many of the fundamental concepts in film theory, ranging from familiar concepts such as apparatus, gaze, genre and identification to less well-known and understood but equally important concepts such as Alain Badiou's inaesthetics, Gilles Deleuze's time-image and Jean-Luc Nancy's evidence. The Routledge Encyclopedia of Film Theory is an ideal reference book for undergraduates of film studies as well as graduate students new to the discipline.
