this book offers an analysis of social security in ireland from 1981 to 2016 a period of immense economic and social change during which social provisions such as pensions and family benefits were downsized or diluted in many countries it considers whether this important area of welfare state provision in ireland changed and the extent and pattern of change in the first in depth account of this aspect of social policy in ireland the book sets the welfare state in a historical and comparative context and reviews the impact of globalisation politics and the financial crash on the scope and generosity of social security the book will be of particular interest to scholars of welfare state politics and comparative social policy as well as to students of irish social policy regulatory reforms in the eu s eastern neighbourhood countries are not as sluggish as often perceived rule enforcement is happening despite the presence of domestic veto players who favour the status quo the lack of eu membership perspective and the presence of russia as an alternative governance provider using ukraine as a primary case study this book examines why convergence with transnational market rules varies across different policy sectors within the eastern neighbourhood countries it analyzes the drivers of regulatory change and explores the conditions under which post soviet economies integrate with international markets in doing so it argues that the impetus for regulatory change in the eastern neighbourhood lies in specific strategies of domestic empowerment applied by external actors furthermore through the study of the impact of western and russian transnational actors the book concludes that russia s presence does not necessarily hinder the integration of the eu s eastern neighbours with international markets instead russia both weakens and strengthens domestic support for convergence with transnational market rules in the region this book will be of key interest to students and scholars of european eu studies and international relations especially in the areas of regulatory politics transnational governance public policy and post soviet transitions in the 1990s amid political upheaval and civil war the socialist federal republic of Yugoslavia dissolved into five successor states the subsequent independence of Montenegro and Kosovo brought the total number to seven Balkan scholar and diplomat to the region Mieczysław P. Boduszynski examines four of those states Croatia Slovenia Macedonia and the federal republic of Yugoslavia and traces their divergent paths toward democracy and Euro-Atlantic integration over the past two decades Boduszynski argues that regime change in the Yugoslav successor states was powerfully shaped by both internal and external forces the economic conditions on the eve of independence and transition and the incentives offered by the European Union and other western actors to encourage economic and political liberalization he shows how these factors contributed to differing formulations of democracy in each state the author engages with the vexing problems of creating and sustaining democracy when circumstances are not entirely supportive of the effort he employs innovative concepts to measure the quality of and prospects for democracy in the Balkan region arguing that procedural indicators of democratization do not adequately describe the stability of liberalism in post communist states this unique perspective on developments in the region provides relevant lessons for regime change in the larger post communist world scholars practitioners and policymakers will find the book to be a compelling contribution to the study of comparative politics democratization and European integration the Northwest Boreal Region (NWB) of North America is a land of extremes extending more than 1.3 million square kilometers (330 million acres) it encompasses the entire spectrum between inundated wetlands below sea level to the tallest peak in North America permafrost gradients span from nearly continuous to absent boreal ecosystems are inherently dynamic and continually change over decades to millennia the braided rivers that shape the valleys and wetlands continually change course creating and removing vast wetlands and peatlands glacial melt erosion fires permafrost dynamics and wind-blown loess are among the shaping forces of the landscape as a result species interactions and ecosystem processes are shifting across time the NWB is a data-poor region and the intention of the NWB Landscape Conservation Cooperative is to determine what data are not available and what data are available for instance historical baseline data describing the economic and social relationships in association with the ecological condition of the NWB landscape are often lacking likewise the size and remoteness of this region make it challenging to measure basic biological information such as species population sizes or trends the paucity of weather and climate monitoring stations also compound the ability to model future climate trends and impacts which is part of the nature of working in the north the purpose of this volume is to create a resource for regional land and resource managers and researchers by synthesizing the latest research on the historical and current status of landscape scale drivers including anthropogenic activities and ecosystem processes future projected changes of each and the effects of changes on important resources
