reflections of south african student leaders 1994 2017 brings together the reflections of twelve former src leaders from across the landscape of south african universities reviews of the previous volume 1981 2014 suggested that it contributed significantly to a better understanding of the stringent demands of visionary and transformative leadership required by university leaders in the fastchanging and increasingly complex public higher education sector this volume is based on comprehensive interviews with former student leaders each of whom provided a personal account in their own words of their experience in the position of student leadership the interviewees are from different backgrounds and of diverse political persuasions the book is important for current and future leaders of higher education institutions as it provides insights into the thinking aspirations desires fears and modus operandi of student leaders such insight can contribute to developing and implementing appropriate strategies for achieving meaningful and constructive engagement with current and future student leaders this is a qualitative case study of the experiences and perceptions of south african and especially international african students living in university residences in south africa the concept community is used to interpret interview data this community was characterised by ambivalent social relations there was discrimination by south africans against their fellow africans and a problematic institutional environment in which the internationals studied nevertheless international students identified with the academic mission of the university and its goals of participating in the global knowledge economy for the complete volume 14 number 1 proceedings see ed568088 between 2013 and 2017 a team of researchers from the human sciences research council undertook a longitudinal qualitative study that tracked eighty students from eight diverse universities in south africa and documented their experiences at these higher education institutions the south african higher education system has historically been characterized by racial and gender inequities inherited from the discriminatory policies of the apartheid era from the ascent to power of the national party in 1948 tertiary institutions were divided along ethno linguistic lines in accordance with the segregationist policies of the apartheid system the 1990s ushered in a new political era characterized by the unbanning of political parties the release of political prisoners and the shift of political power from the nationalist party to the government of national unity led by the african national congress since the change of government in 1994 there has been a concerted effort to transform the system of higher education from one in which race gender and class determine access and success to a more equitable one the demise of apartheid in south africa requires that educational institutions transform in order to reflect the changing nature of the country this volume includes case studies on south african tertiary institutions immersed in the process of transformation examining the issue of language policy at afrikaans medium institutions the challenges that the historically white english medium institutions face when including a previously excluded group the experiences of black south african students enrolled at such institutions and the challenges faced by historically disadvantaged institutions this title is an introduction to economics in general set against a contemporary south african background the practical examples make this publication extremely accessible the book explores forms of popular student resistance to apartheid education in south africa particularly at the university of fort hare ufh by tracing student activism at ufh from 1970 to 2000 highlighting the factors that influenced the development of a culture of student resistance investigating the root causes that made fort hare exceptional in its stand against apartheid and chronicling the educational and social implications that resulted from students unparalleled and fearless actions against the apartheid system student resistance at fort hare can be traced as far back as the 1940s however this book will primarily focus on the critical 1970 2000 period which was marked by increased student activism in south africa the 1980s and 1990s were peak years for student activism in the country there is no doubt that student struggles during this period and thereafter helped dismantle apartheid and usher in a new south african government the lived experiences of students educational practices are analysed and explained in terms of the book s plea for the recognition of the multidimensionality of students as educational beings with unexplored cultural wealth and hidden capitals the book presents an argument that student lives are entangled in complex social spatial relations and processes that extend across family neighbourhood and peer associations which are largely misrecognised in educational policy and practice the book is relevant to understanding the role of policy curriculum and pedagogy in addressing the educational performance of working class youth the politics of black education has long been a key issue in southern african studies but despite rich debates on the racial and class dimensions of schooling historians have neglected their distinctive gendered dynamics a world of their own is the first book to explore the meanings of black women s education in the making of modern south africa its lens is a social history of the first high school for black south african women inanda seminary from its 1869 founding outside of durban through the recent past employing diverse archival and oral historical sources meghan healy clancy reveals how educated black south african women developed a tradition of social leadership by both working within and pushing at the boundaries of state power she demonstrates that although colonial and apartheid governance marginalized women politically it also valorized the social contributions of small cohorts of educated black women this made space for growing numbers of black women to pursue careers as teachers and health workers over the course of the twentieth century after the student uprisings of 1976 as young black men increasingly rejected formal education for exile and street politics young black women increasingly stayed in school and cultivated an alternative form of student politics inanda seminary students experiences vividly show how their academic achievements challenged the narrow conceptions of black women s social roles harbored by both officials and black male activists by the transition to democracy in the early 1990s black women outnumbered black men at every level of education introducing both new opportunities for women and gendered conflicts that remain acute today

the south african higher education system has historically been characterized by racial and gender inequities inherited from the discriminatory policies of the apartheid era emerging from a higher education history plagued with deeply entrenched racial disparities voices of conflict examines how academic programs and structures at the historically white universities have responded to the increasing enrollment of black students since the enactment of the universities amendment act in 1983 dr mabokela specifically seeks to understand the perceptions and attitudes of students faculty and administrators and to determine how these respective constituents have responded to changes in student demographics her study brings to light with clarity and thoroughness many too often overlooked and neglected issues in higher education in south africa
