for a long time the diatessaron has drawn the interest of modern scholars some of the problems related to the syriac harmony of the gospels have been solved others still remain in dispute the syriac commentary on the diatessaron attributed to ephraem 306 373 is one of the most important witnesses to the wording of the harmony unfortunately most of the surviving syriac folios of the text have been discovered only recently consequently no detailed study on the commentary has been undertaken yet it is the aim of this study to present this scholarly demand this oxford dissertation deals with the questions of the difficult process of the commentary's transmission and analyses both the trinitarian and christological understanding of its author by way of a comparison with the genuine ephraem this study argues that the commentary in its present form is a compilation from the hand of one of his disciples however it serves as an important source on the theological discussions in the edessa of the late fourth and early fifth centuries in 2005 cormac mccarthy's novel No Country for Old Men was published to wide acclaim and in 2007 ethan and joel coen brought their adaptation of mccarthy's novel to the screen the film earned praise from critics worldwide and was honored with four academy awards including best picture best director and best adapted screenplay in No Country for Old Men from novel to film scholars offer varied approaches to both the novel and the award winning film beginning with several essays dedicated entirely to the novel and its place within the mccarthy canon the anthology offers subsequent essays focusing on the film the adaptation process and the coen brothers more broadly the book also features an interview with the coen brothers long time cinematographer roger deakins this entertaining and enriching book for readers interested in the coen brothers films and in mccarthy's fiction is an important contribution to both literature and film studies

An Aviary of Small Birds is both elegy to a stillborn son and testament to the redemptive qualities of poetry as a transformative art the book opens at the birth which paradoxically becomes the moment of death when after a long labor and an emergency caesarean the baby's heart gives out for the mother her body flooded with endorphins euphoria gives way to shock followed by an intense and visceral grief however just as grief itself is not linear so too the book follows an emotional rather than a strictly chronological arc lyric rather than narrative at the same time karen mccarthy woolf's debut work is a formal experimentation that allows an intellectual and metaphysical line of enquiry to emerge ultimately it is a closely felt connection with the natural world particularly with water and birds which allows the author to transcend the experience while honoring the spirit of her son in 1811 england was on the brink of economic collapse and revolution the veteran poet and campaigner anna letitia barbauld published a prophecy of the british nation reduced to ruins by its refusal to end the interminable war with france titled Eighteen Hundred and Eleven combining ground breaking historical research with incisive textual analysis this new study dispels the myth surrounding the hostile reception of the poem and takes a striking episode in romantic era culture as the basis for exploring poetry as a medium of political protest clery examines the issues at stake from the nature of patriotism to the threat to public credit and throws new light on the views and activities of a wide range of writers including radical loyalist and dissenting journalists coleridge wordsworth southey and barbauld herself putting a woman writer at the centre of the enquiry opens up a revised perspective on the politics of romanticism
