animals and war is the first collection of essays to explore its important yet neglected topic scholars from sociology history anthropology and literary and cultural studies investigate the presence of animals in human wars the essays analyze a wide range of phenomena including the new militarization of bees zoo animals during war war dogs finish horses in world war ii canadian war literature and the effort to memorialize nonhuman war animals although animals are often forced to participate in human wars their presence also signals human vulnerability and dependence several chapters demonstrate that in the frequently horrible circumstances of war powerful sympathies nonetheless flourish between humans and animals animals and war thus exposes the often paradoxical contours of human animal relationships in cosmopolitan belongingness and war matthew leep develops a cosmopolitan account of war that blends sharp inquiry into interspecies politics with original poetry on animals loss and war informed by the works of jacques derrida this book is not only a somber and sobering exploration of the loss of animal lives during the iraq war from the initial us invasion to later struggles with isis but also an imaginative tracing of animal experiences in spectral poetic moments by emphasizing elegies poetic space and multispecies belonging leep envisions the cosmopolitan text as a hybrid form of critical and poetic engagement with animal others an insightful mix of cosmopolitan poetics poetry and analysis of the iraq war in its multispecies entanglements cosmopolitan belongingness and war connects contemporary concerns with political violence memory and interspecies politics to imagine a more spectral posthumanist and poetic cosmopolitanism interdisciplinary in scope this book will engage scholars of international relations political theory us foreign policy animal studies poetry and derrida as well as those interested in human animal relations in perilous times explores ecological crises and extinctions that have shaped us history a multispecies history of the globalized united states bellwether histories reveals how animals have been ensnared in colonialism capitalism and environmental destruction as human decisions created and perpetuated untenable and unequal interspecies relationships the collection s authors explore how people misunderstood or ignored animal crises precipitated by habitat destruction and population declines sudden dependence on human aid shifts from freedom to captivity or subjection to overextended management systems chapters address a range of themes including the links between antislavery and anti animal cruelty advocacy how cattle horse and pig behavior shaped human life and technology and the politics of caring for and trafficking wild animals this volume interrogates the history of animal disposability and its ideological twin in us history human exceptionalism the anthropocentric myth that people could harm animals without harming themselves today's mass extinctions and ecological breakdowns ensure deadly zoonotic pandemics and global warming will harass us far into the future bellwether histories looks back at how animals have been warning us of our collective fate and asks why they were so seldom heard what is a suitable genre to describe the post 9 11 era mired in wars violence and unspeakable horror what kind of literary expressions and techniques are appropriate to give voice to the prevalence of global anguish in the post 9 11 scenario is the theatre of the absurd a viable option for the expression of the incongruity of the unspeakable horror unleashed after 9 11 is the term absurd applicable to this era if yes in what terms is this applicable this book tries to find answers to these questions and many more it reflects on the epistemological shifts in the avant garde tradition of the theatre of the absurd its ongoing critical currency in contemporary history and its changing contours in the post 9 11 plays of rajiv joseph an emerging american dramatist it establishes the continued relevance of the theatre of the absurd at the current juncture of human history inspired by true events a graphic novel examines life on the streets of war torn iraq raising questions about the meaning of liberation through the experiences of four lions who escaped from the baghdad zoo during a raid in the spring of 2003 a pride of lions escapes from the baghdad zoo during an american bombing raid lost and confused hungry but finally free the four lions roamed the decimated streets of baghdad in a desperate struggle for their lives in documenting the plight of the lions pride of baghdad raises questions about the true meaning of liberation can it be given or is it earned only through self determination and sacrifice and in the end is it truly better to die free than to live in captivity as a director and theatre artist i want my creative work as a storyteller to illuminate myth the beauty of myth transcends all cultural boundaries by revealing through the art of storytelling the universal within the particular thus illuminating the foundation of our common experience playwright rajiv joseph is a consummate contemporary mythmaker whether rooted in the troubled desires of adolescence gruesome playground injuries or in our fascination with classical antiquity and our own contemporary nightmares monsters at the door or bengal tiger at the baghdad zoo a fantastic war torn tale of a broken world adrift and lost in translation his vision is muscularly metatheatrical stylistically bengal tiger at the baghdad zoo delves into what joseph himself describes as magical realism and in my thesis production i was wanted to explore how magical realism could be deployed as a theatrical convention particularly in relation to space the tiger is a character that is written in the spirit of the epic and i used similar conventions in style and clarified actions with my cast by using video projection mapping as a design concept i attempted to juxtapose joseph s hyperrealism with his vision of the fantastic by fracturing the contemporary imagery of the day the remnants of our myths driven the media and technology impress false needs that can only be fulfilled through consumerism and and reconstruct them i wanted to engender a objective reaction from the audience in bengal tiger at the baghdad zoo rajiv joseph has artfully conjured a caustic and cautionary tale that provocatively questions the very end of faith this is a story of our time and all time a postmodern theatrical myth that powerfully transcends the broken landscape of its exotic cultural boundaries it is difficult to view iraq today and fail to view joseph s play as frighteningly prescient as a nation we have fractured ourselves as a species we have forgotten our prayers as a planet we are all lost in translation those ideas are at the heart of my interpretation of the play the japanese government disposed of dangerous animals not only carnivores but also herbivores such as elephants in zoos and circuses during world war ii including those in japan s three colonies korea taiwan and manchukuo japan s puppet state in current northeast china strangely the disposal order was issued in august 1943 more than 15 months before u s b 29 air raids on japan began while some european zoos also destroyed their animals none of the authorities in europe enforced the disposal of zoo animals as systematically as the japanese home ministry no country conducted as nationwide and systematic a disposal of captive animals as japan this policy was an integral part of the japanese government propaganda to mobilize the whole civilian population into total war rather than for the ostensible purpose of public safety written and photographed by canadian freelance photojournalist robert j galbraith this is a personal daily account of the anarchy and horror that unfolded during five weeks of war in iraq in april and may 2003 the independent photojournalist who also covers assignments for the new york times takes us away from the bright lights of the modern media giants describing the misery of the war that many will never see or hear about from the streets of baghdad basra kirkuk arbil tikrit and mosul the author describes first hand the main flaws in the bush strategy to win the war in iraq it describes how a lack of coalition troops led to the looting and civil disorder that plagued the nation galbraith witnesses the looting of weapons from military warehouses which were then sold on the lawless streets of samarra by children while coalition troops drove by he interviews families in saddam city who were offered food medicine and security to join the uprising against coalition troops every day was a battle for survival for the street orphans who formed gangs to survive extortion by rival gangs and rape by perverts released from saddam s prisons he compares the relative calm in basra and kurdistan with the living hell of baghdad the goal of this thesis is to document analyze and interpret the process that led to the realized scenic design of rajiv joseph s bengal tiger at the baghdad zoo produced by temple university department of theater and presented at the adrienne theater as part of the philadelphia fridge festival i will discuss each part of the design and the production process as well as the technical rehearsal process while objectively analyzing the choices made by the production team and myself
