at the heart of the book is mordred king arthur's incestuous son shown by guerin to be an integral part of the arthurian tradition from the very beginning mordred is seen as the tangible proof of the king's sin committed in all innocence in his youth but resulting in a living incarnation of evil who will kill his father on salisbury plain putting an end to the arthurian world but in the early stages of arthurian romance because this story cannot be told without the death of arthur it cannot be told at all for arthur's existence is the necessary condition of the genre the story of his death would entail authorial suicide and the impossibility of further literary creation guerin argues that the authors of the texts examined in this study chretien de troyes's le chevalier de la charrete and le conte du graal and the anonymous middle english sir gawain and the green knight deliberately use the medieval reader's extra textual knowledge of the mordred story to create a second level of reading behind lancelot perceval and gawain is the shadowy figure of mordred never explicitly mentioned and the modern reader must learn to see this shadow in order fully to appreciate the authors purpose taking into account this hidden framework not only sheds a surprising new light on these texts it also gives a convincing solution to the much discussed question of why chretien left two of his romances le chevalier de la charrete and le conte du graal unfinished the first chapter which deals with arthurian tragedy in the thirteenth century prose cycle is particularly timely as it coincides with the publication of the first english translation of the cycle to which guerin's study serves as an excellent introduction

a comprehensive study of pastoralism in edmund spenser's poetry modern readers and writers find it natural to contrast the agency of realistic fictional characters to the constrained range of action typical of literary personifications yet no commentator before the eighteenth century suggests that prosopopoeia signals a form of reduced agency andrew escobedo argues that premodern writers including spenser marlowe and milton understood personification as a literary expression of will an essentially energetic figure that depicted passion or concept transforming into action as the will emerged as an isolatable faculty in the christian middle ages it was seen not only as the instrument of human agency but also as perversely independent of other human capacities for example intellect and moral character renaissance accounts of the will conceived of volition both as the means to self creation and the faculty by which we lose control of ourselves after offering a brief history of the will that isolates the distinctive features of the faculty in medieval and renaissance thought escobedo makes his case through an examination of several personified figures in renaissance literature conscience in the tudor interludes despair in doctor faustus and book i of the faerie queen love in books iii and iv of the faerie queen and sin in paradise lost these examples demonstrate that literary personification did not amount to a dim reflection of realistic fictional character but rather that it provided a literary means to explore the numerous conundrums posed by the premodern notion of the human will this book will be of great interest to faculty and graduate students interested in medieval studies and renaissance literature
