examines scientific discoveries and developments within their historic context showing how social trends and events influenced science and how scientific developments changed people's lives endocrine disrupting chemicals (EDCs) have been shown to produce changes in the endocrine system of organisms leading to increases in cancers and abnormalities in reproductive structure and function. This book presents research on the endocrine disrupting effects of sewage and industrial effluents covering the sources, fate, and transport of EDCs.

This book provides much new thinking on the phenomenon of whole person education, a phenomenon which features strongly in East Asian universities and which aims to develop students intellectually, spiritually, and ethically; to master critical thinking skills; to explore ethical challenges in the surrounding community; and to acquire a broad-based foundation of knowledge in humanities, society, and nature. The book considers different approaches to whole person education, including Confucian, Buddhist, and Chinese perspectives, Western philosophy and religion, and interdisciplinary approaches. Overall, the book provides a comprehensive overview of whole person education, why it matters, and how to implement it. Moreover, although the examples in the book are from East Asia, the discussion and the values involved are universal and important for the whole world.

Eloquent Spaces adopts the twin analytic of meaning and community to write a fresh history of building in early India. It presents a new perspective on the principles and practices of early Indian architecture, defining it broadly over a range of space. The book argues for architecture as a form of cultural production as well as public consumption. Ten essays by leading archaeologists, architects, historians, and philosophers examine different architectural sites and landscapes, including Sanchi, Mohenjo-daro, Srirangam, Chidambaram, Patan, Konark, Basgo, and Puri. They demonstrate the need to look beyond the built form to its spirit, beyond aesthetics to cognition, and thereby to integrating architecture with its myriad living contexts. The volume captures some of the semantic diversity inherent in premodern Indian traditions of civic building, both sacred and secular, which were however unified in their insistence on enacting meaning and a transcendent validity over and above utility and beauty of form. The book is a quest for a culturally rooted architecture as an alternative to the growing crisis of disembodiedness that informs modern praxis. This volume will be of interest to scholars and practitioners of architecture, ancient Indian history, philosophy, art history, and cultural studies.
