the pictorial art of el greco transmaterialities temporalities and media investigates el greco s pictorial art as foundational to the globalising trends manifested in the visual culture of early modernity it also exposes the figurative semantic and allegorical senses that el greco created to challenge an italian renaissance centered discourse even though he was guided by the unprecedented burgeoning of devotional art in the post tridentine decades and by the expressive possibilities of earlier religious artifacts especially those inherited from the apostolic past the author demonstrates that el greco forged his own independent trajectory while his paintings have been studied in relation to the italian and spanish school traditions his pictorial art in a global mediterranean context continues to receive scant attention taking a global perspective as its focus the book sheds new light on el greco s highly original contribution to early mediterranean and multi institutional configurations of the christian faith in byzantium venice rome toledo and madrid discussions surrounding the veil often run along essentialist and ahistorical lines associating islam with oppression shame and honor contributing to these stereotypes the media in both the east and the west obsessively condemn or valorize practices of veiling in veil obsessed umme al wazed and afrin zeenat present a range of essays to complicate and challenge the dialogue around the veil exploring its symbolic religious and cultural significance scholars from a variety of fields analyze and critique the use of the veil in literature film television and the fine arts considering the multiple perceptions of the veil this volume shows that the meaning of hijab can be natural or constructed real or metaphorical and religious or political when it is presented through the media in the teachings of islam and in upholding it as a national symbol of a nation state there are inherent tensions among the ideas concerning the power of hijab does wearing it give agency to women or does it represent oppression thereby creating and perpetuating stereotypes how an individual sees their relationship with the self family and community and the nation state dictates their choice of whether to wear the veil in exploring the wide range of portrayals the editors pose critical questions about perceptions of the veil and the dangers of ignoring its multiplicity as we must know the hijab has been historically considered in euro america a symbol of difference between east and west the hijab was also mostly seen and described as awful regarding gender politics visibility and the conception of self even france still has a law against it surprisingly the muslim woman s veil constitutes a common site in euro american visual culture contemporary veil art has helped inspire some scholarship which has begun to broach the topic of the veil specifically examining its role in colonial modernist feminist and muslim discourses probing its resurgence east and west and analyzing its significance in media representations arguing in support of the veil s multivalence and seeking to rectify the dearth of many studies on the topic this book initiates a mapping of the veil in contemporary art underscoring the alternative narratives to mainstream the representations it proffers and exploring its myriad meanings and its link to the wider issues of gender politics and identity i hope the book will truly inspire our important multiculturalism
