the new police officer during the past twenty years the tasks required of police officers have expanded and changed with dramatic rapidity the traditional roles of the police had been those of law enforcement and the maintenance of public order as a consequence police officers were typically large bodied males selected for their physical abilities and trained to accept orders and enforce the law over the past two decades however the industrialized nations have placed a variety of new demands on police officers to traditional law enforcement and public order tasks have been added social work mental health duties and community relations work for example domestic disputes violence between husbands and wives lovers relatives etc have increased in frequency and severity or at least there has been a dramatic increase in reporting the occurrence of domestic violence our societies have no formal system to deal with domestic disputes and the responsibility to do so in most countries has fallen to the police in fact in some areas as many as 60% of calls for service to the police are related to domestic disputes see the chapter in this text by Dutton as a result the police officer has had to become a skilled social worker able to intervene with sensitivity in domestic situations alternatively in the case of West Germany the officer has had to learn to work cooperatively with social workers see the chapter by Steinhilper

I don't think I can actually remember a time in policing when I didn't want to join the armed offenders squad my early reasons for joining probably weren't the purest though I just thought they looked really cool five foot and fearless is the inspiring story of Liz Williams a police officer and mum of one who desperately wanted to be part of the armed offenders squad the brutal selection process would send most people running for cover but her husband's words spurred her on you know you could do it if you wanted to Liz's story is one of determination and girl power she struggles with motherhood and childcare just like any other working mum but in Liz's world she needs someone to look after her son at 1 a.m. when she's called on to fight crime a gifted storyteller Liz entertains with tales of drowning in a sea gear that is too big for her trying to keep her togs from riding up in the swim trial and dealing with criminals in bad underwear but her story has a darker side as she reveals the harsh realities of the job that an AOS member faces every day Liz's account of the 2009 Napier siege is especially harrowing at times laugh out loud funny at other times shocking Liz's story offers rare insights into one of the most dangerous jobs in the country safety critical jobs in fields such as aviation and nuclear power plants require a careful and comprehensive analysis of all factors relevant to critical job performance understanding how these factors uniquely and in combination affect performance requires interconnecting a job performance database with several other information databases the scientific method is necessary to ensure information quality to solve problems or project trends and to correctly evaluate changes in selection training performance evaluation the person machine interface or team dynamics combining the scientific method with the construction validation and use of the information databases results in a scientific information system ISIS which joins practical utility with powerful evaluations of relevant theories this book discusses how to blend scientific methods with the broad capabilities of computer database information systems this synthesis will aid anyone who is trying to explain predict or change the behavior of a complex system involving humans whilst developed from research on information systems in the aviation industry the principles and methods are universal and the book provides conceptual guidance for the construction and use of such systems in other domains the examples clarify the advantages of this type of information system and the enormous potential power for understanding a target system completely and accurately
