the demise of the soviet union in 1991 resulted in new state led nation building projects in central asia the emergence of independent republics spawned a renewed western scholarly interest in the region s nationality issues presenting a detailed study this book examines the state led nation building projects in the soviet republics of kazakhstan and uzbekistan exploring the degree forms and ways of the soviet state involvement in creating kazakh and uzbek nations this book places the discussion within the theoretical literature on nationalism the author argues that both kazakh and uzbek nations are artificial constructs of moscow based soviet policy makers of the 1920s and 1930s this book challenges existing arguments in current scholarship by bringing some new and alternative insights into the role of indigenous central asian and soviet officials in these nation building projects it goes on to critically examine post soviet official kazakh and uzbek historiographies according to which kazakh and uzbek peoples had developed national collective identities and loyalties long before the soviet era this book will be a useful contribution to central asian history and politics as well as studies of nationalism and soviet politics kazakhstan is one of the best known success stories of central asia perhaps even of the entire eurasian space it boasts a fast growing economy at least until the 2014 crisis a strategic location between russia china and the rest of central asia and a regime with far reaching branding strategies but the country also faces weak institutionalization patronage authoritarianism and regional gaps in socioeconomic standards that challenge the stability and prosperity narrative advanced by the aging president Nursultan Nazarbayev this policy oriented analysis does not tell us a lot about the kazakhstani society itself and its transformations this edited volume returns kazakhstan to the scholarly spotlight offering new multidisciplinary insights into the country s recent evolution drawing from political science anthropology and sociology it looks at the regime s sophisticated legitimacy mechanisms and ongoing quest for popular support it analyzes the country s fast changing national identity and the delicate balance between the kazakh majority and the russian speaking minorities it explores how the society negotiates deep social transformations and generates new hybrid local and global cultural references this lavishly illustrated book reveals the full history of the heart of central asia across the ages focusing on the region that is modern day kazakhstan using essays from renowned archaeologists historians and scholars as the core of each chapter this book explains kazakhstan s long and complex history this flowing narrative is complemented a collection of fairy tales from estonia latvia and lithuania this book explores how population mobility varies among the countries of asia while much attention has been given to international migration movement within countries is numerically much more significant coupling innovative methods developed in the global image project with the contextual knowledge of experts on 15 asian countries the book measures and explains how people across asia differ in the probability of changing residence the ages at which they move and the impact of these migrations on the distribution of human settlement within each country it demonstrates how stage of economic development coupled with historical events local contingencies cultural norms political frameworks and the physical environment shape human migration by using rigorous statistics in a robust comparative framework this book provides a clear understanding of contemporary migration in asia for students and academics and a valuable resource for policy makers and planners in asia and beyond this volume offers perspectives from the general public in post soviet central asia and reconsiders the meaning and the legacy of soviet administration in kazakhstan kyrgyzstan and uzbekistan this study emphasizes that the way in which people in central asia reconcile their soviet past to a great extent refers to the three fold process of recollecting their everyday experiences reflecting on their past from the perspective of their post soviet present and re imagining these three elements influence memories and lead to selectivity in memory construction this process also emphasizes the aspects of the soviet era people choose to recall in positive and negative lights ultimately this book demonstrates how soviet life has influenced the identity and understanding of self among the population in post soviet central asian states china s belt and road initiative bri is an important developmental measure that started from september 2013 when chinese president xi jinping initiated the strategic concept of building a new silk road economic belt as a model for global economic development and growth this book focuses on the bri s influence on the interregional cooperation between asia and europe it discusses a variety of topics including financial security featuring how financial institutions such as asian infrastructural investment bank world bank and asian development bank provide feasible financial support for the economic development of countries along the bri route china s economy and the new normal transformation the integration of high speed railways equipment manufacturing into the initiative the china dream and many more in a unique survey based on new census data geographic perspectives on soviet central asia highlights the region s geographic economic and ecological problems since 1945 painting a grim picture this book investigates how the combination of rapid population growth and declining per capita investment is causing economic conditions to slide in rural areas and encouraging an ecological catastrophe the authors discuss the effects of low rural out migration and show that at current growth rates the rural working age population will double with each generation unprecedented in a developed country this is causing the region to become more rather than less rural soviet central asia is an area of low productivity and the book considers the lack of support from soviet central government to the region wishing to maximise their return to capital and labour the government is concentrating its investment in the european west and directing insufficient funds for a growing workforce in central asia soviet central asia also faces grave ecological problems the declining level of the aral sea extensive soil salinization and water pollution all largely due to past attempts at irrigation the authors consider the effect of these disasters on the area and look to future possibilities in this very important region of the world with the fall of the soviet union in 1991 former communist party leaders in central asia were faced with the daunting task of building states where they previously had not existed kazakhstan kyrgyzstan tajikistan turkmenistan and uzbekistan their task was complicated by the institutional and ideological legacy of the soviet system as well as by a more actively engaged international community these nascent states inherited a set of institutions that included bloated bureaucracies centralized economic planning and patronage networks some of these institutions survived others have mutated and new institutions have been created experts on central asia here examine the emerging relationship between state actors and social forces in the region through the prism of local institutions the authors reassess both our understanding of central asia and of the state building process more broadly they scrutinize a wide array of institutional actors ranging from regional governments and neighborhood committees to transnational and non governmental organizations with original empirical research and theoretical insight the volume s contributors illuminate an obscure but resource rich and strategically significant region cinema and nationalism are two fundamentally modern phenomena but how have films shaped our understanding of the creation the imagining of central asian nations here rico isaacs uses cinema as an analytical lens to explore how the kazakh national identity has been constructed and contested drawing on an analysis of kazakh films from the last century and featuring new interviews with directors and critics involved in the central asian film industry his book traces the construction of nationalism within kazakh cinema from the country s inception as a soviet republic to a modern independent nation isaacs identifies four narratives since the collapse of the soviet union a warrior like ethnic narrative rooted in the 18th century struggles against the mongolian oirat tribes a civic inspired narrative cemented in the stalinist deportations of the 1930s and 40s a religious narrative founded within the mystic and philosophical religion of tengrism and the cult of the sky god and a socio economic narrative which roots kazakh nationhood and identity in contemporary social divisions the lived day to day experiences of ordinary citizens and the struggles they face with authority these last two tropes demonstrate how cinema has emerged as a site of dissent against the country s authoritarian regime under president nazarbayev film and identity in kazakhstan advances our understanding of kazakhstan and nationalism by demonstrating the multiple and inessential character of each and illustrates the important role of cinema in contesting political power in the post soviet space a succinct survey of the history and peoples of the new central asian republics this book provides a profound geographical description and analysis of central asia the authors take a synthetic approach in a period of critical transformation in the post soviet time the monograph analyzes comprehensively the physical and human geography as well as human nature interactions of central asia with focus on kazakhstan uzbekistan turkmenistan kyrgyzstan and tajikistan natural processes are described at a systemic scale focusing on ecological impacts and consequences and contemporary human adaptations and organization it also discusses in which ways the human organizations try to apply solutions for their needs such as security territorial management and resources renewability material and functional needs identity elaborations culture and communication the geography of central asia appeals to scientists and students of regional geography and interested academics from other areas such as social political economic and environmental studies within the context of central asia the book is also a very useful resource for field trips into this area based on first hand research conducted by the moscow centre for civilizational and regional studies this book documents the findings of one of the first authoritative studies on the newly independent states of central asia kazakhstan uzbekistan turkmenistan kirgizia and tadjikistan focusing on the unprecedented challenges facing these nascent countries it examines the political events and socio economic changes which followed the disintegration of the soviet union by analysing the difficulties of state building and the dramatic social upheavals experienced by these republics the book also covers the path of economic growth in the 1990s by examining the recession of 1991 1995 and the increasing income disparity between the affluent minority and the impoverished majority the continuing socio political and inter ethnic tensions in the region are also covered in some detail as is the relationship between the new states and russia attention is further drawn to the causes and outcomes of the civil war in tadjikistan as well as the growing international competition for access to the natural resources of the central asian countries this work will be of particular use to the student of economics and politics of central asia and will also provide great insight to business
