much has been written on the human rights relevance and impacts of the policies and activities of the world bank and imf or international financial institutions ifis however while many of the human rights based critiques of the bank and fund purport to link broadly defined reforms with obligations under international human rights law rarely has this been carried out through a rigorous and in depth application of international legal rules governing the proper interpretation of the institutions mandates and rarely have the policy consequences and practical possibilities for human rights integration been explored in any detail these are the principal gaps that the present book aims to fill by reference to a sample of the ifis most important and controversial contemporary activities beginning in 1956 each vol includes as a regular number the blue book of southern progress and the southern industrial directory formerly issued separately this issues paper aims to evaluate the link between economic exclusion and discrimination against ethnic religious and linguistic minorities and indigenous peoples non discrimination is one of the most fundamental human rights recognized in international law and most national constitutions yet discrimination against minorities persists this implies huge costs for individuals and communities that are discriminated against and society in general although as the authors of this paper point out there are difficulties over definitions and data limitations there is evidence to show that across diverse regions minorities and indigenous peoples experience higher levels of poverty less access to education health care and basic services and have fewer employment opportunities than the general population hence minorities and indigenous peoples are more likely to suffer economic and social and political exclusion than other groups development actors do not well understand the relationship between discrimination and poverty this paper argues that discrimination is an important element in economic exclusion and must be addressed to establish sustainable development
