essay from the year 1998 in the subject american studies culture and applied geography grade 1 a university of aberdeen english department course read the city read the text language english abstract edward w soja called los angeles the quintessential postmodern metropolis this however shall not be the premise of my argument in this essay because of the obvious danger of circularity yet i will use postmodern critics and compare my findings to postmodern models of culture space and society i will not discuss the term postmodernism itself simply because the range of this essay does not allow my entering this ongoing debate the term will be used as denoting both a period beginning for my purposes in the 1960s and a theory of cultural tendencies in contemporary life for this essay i will assume that postmodernism is a fact a part of everyday reality and that it differs substantially from modernism the main body of this essay will consist of a discussion of the fundamental factors which define los angeles as postmodern space i will focus on particularities that distinguish los angeles from other cities most of all from those which have not yet crossed the threshold of postmodernity firstly i will investigate the geographical instability of the city the fact that it is threatened to be annihilated by natural forces such as earthquakes and the desert secondly i will address the idea of the city as a desert its horizontality its vastness its lack of centre thirdly the structure on this flat surface will be addressed the freeways as an arterial network and the structure of segregating walls both literal and metaphorical finally i will conclude by investigating the parallels between the idea of instability that underlies all of the factors i discuss and the notion of the unstable in postmodernism
