science fiction and fantasy are often thought of as stereotypically male genres yet both have a long and celebrated history of female creators characters and fans in particular the science fiction and fantasy heroine is a recognized figure made popular in media such as alien the terminator and buffy the vampire slayer though imperfect she is strong and definitely does not need to be saved by a man this figure has had an undeniable influence on the hunger games divergent star wars the force awakens and many other more recent female led book and movie franchises despite their popularity these fictional women have received inconsistent scholarly interest this collection of new essays is intended to help fill a gap in the serious discussion of women and gender in science fiction and fantasy the contributors are scholars teachers practicing writers and other professionals in fields related to the genre critically examining the depiction of women and gender in science fiction and fantasy on both page and screen they focus on characters who are as varied as they are interesting and who range from vampire slayers to time travelers witches and spacefarers

in this book professor jeanine grenberg defends the idea that kant s virtue theory is best understood as a system of eudaemonism indeed as a distinctive form of eudaemonism that makes it preferable to other forms of it a system of what she calls deontological eudaemonism in deontological eudaemonism one achieves happiness both rationally conceived as non felt pleasure in the virtually unimpeded harmonious activity of one s will and choice and empirically conceived as pleasurable fulfilment of one s desires only via authentic commitment to and fulfilment of what is demanding of all rational beings making persons as such one's end in all things to tell this story of deontological eudaemonism. Grenberg first defends the notion that Kant's deontological approach to ethics is simultaneously and indeed foundationally and most basically teleological. She then shows that the realization of an aptitude for the virtuous fulfillment of one's obligatory ends provides the solid basis for simultaneous realization of happiness both rationally and empirically conceived. Along the way she argues both that Kant's notion of happiness rationally conceived is essentially identical to Aristotle's conception of happiness as unimpeded activity and that his notion of happiness empirically conceived is best realized via an unwavering commitment to the fulfillment of one's obligatory ends.

Vols 10-11 include Meteorology of England by James Glaisher as a separately paged section at end.
