the chronicles of two west african kingdoms presents a new reading of west african history from the fifteenth to the nineteenth centuries based on close analysis of arabic manuscripts from timbuktu and other regions this volume provides key historical context from the songhay empire through the caliphate of Ḥamdallāhi along with translations and arabic editions of the long obscured tārīkh ibn al mukhtār in parallel with the later production known as the tārīkh al fattāsh the central observation that emerges from these texts is that muslim scholars in premodern west africa who saw themselves as constitutive to the powerful kingdoms in the western sudan claimed almost unprecedented authority to shape reality through narration this volume brings together for the first time a significant body of professor barnes scholarly writing on early korean state formation integrated so that successive topics form a coherent overview of the problems and solutions in peninsular state formation
