in many senses viewers have cut their teeth on the violence in american cinema from anthony perkins slashing janet leigh in our most infamous of shower scenes to the 1970s masterpieces of martin scorsese sam peckinpah and francis ford coppola to our present day undertakings in imagining global annihilations through terrorism war and alien grudges transfigurations brings our cultural obsession with film violence into a renewed dialogue with contemporary theory challenging the orthodoxies of previous research on film violence and contributing a fresh perspective to how we might reconceptualize fictional forms of this particular kind of aggressive cinema asbjörn gronstad argues that the use of violence in hollywood films should be understood semiotically rather than viewed realistically tranfigurations thus alters both our methodology of reading violence in films and the meanings we assign to them depicting violence not as a self contained incident but a convoluted network of our own cultural ideologies and beliefs in this insightful study of hollywood cinema since 1969 film historian nick smedley traces the cultural and intellectual heritage of american films showing how recent hollywood movies owe a profound debt to the liberal values of new deal cinema hollywood cinema is not usually thought of as politically or socially engaged but the author argues that it is in fact one of the most value laden of all national cinemas drawing on a long historical view of persistent themes in hollywood cinema smedley demonstrates how film makers in america continue to explore the balance between unbridled capita in december 1967 time magazine put bonnie and clyde on its cover and proudly declared that hollywood cinema was undergoing a renaissance for the next few years a wide range of formally and thematically challenging films were produced at the very centre of the american film industry often but by no means always combining success at the box office with huge critical acclaim both then and later this collection brings together acknowledged experts on american cinema to examine thirteen key films from the years 1966 to 1974 starting with who's afraid of virginia woolf a major studio release which was in effect exempted from hollywood's production code and thus helped to liberate american filmmaking from self censorship long standing taboos to do with sex violence race relations drugs politics religion and much else could now be broken often in conjunction with extensive stylistic experimentation whereas most previous scholarship has examined these developments through the prism of auteurism with its tight focus on film directors and their oeuvres the contributors to this collection also carefully examine production histories and processes in doing so they pay particular attention to the economic underpinnings and collaborative nature of filmmaking the influence of european art cinema as well as of exploitation experimental and underground films and the connections between cinema and other media notably publishing music and theatre several chapters show how the innovations of the hollywood renaissance relate to further changes in american cinema from the mid 1970s onwards first published in english in 1974 hollywood and after presents contemporary cinema in all its complexity describing and analyzing the various factors which in the sixties and seventies brought so many changes both inside hollywood and throughout the film industry of the usa the film industry has been restructured no longer independent it now forms only a part sometimes only a small and secondary part of large diversified corporations formerly rivals today cinema and television not only coexist but are forced to cooperate closely in a world of technical developments such as videocassettes cable tv and satellite transmissions the main part of this book is dedicated to artistic and creative questions a new generation of film makers is making films for a new generation of film goers who are looking for fresh values on the screen more and more the cinema mirrors the reality of american life complicated uneasy shaken by violent outbursts charged with a multitude of controversies and conflicts the rose tinted american dream which hollywood peddled is a thing of the past today the us cinema offers a variety of artistic political and social approaches and a wide range of highly individual styles in the world of social media ott platforms and ai this book is an important historical reference for scholars and researchers of film studies film history and media studies in this pioneering work sixteen historians analyse individual films for deeper insight into us institutions values and lifestyles linking all of the essays is the belief that film holds much of value for the historian seeking to understand and interpret american history and culture this title will be equally valuable for students and scholars in history using film for analysis as well as film students and scholars exploring the way social and historical circumstances are reflected and represented in film how has american cinema engaged with the rapid transformation of cities and urban culture since the 1960s and what role have films and film industries played in shaping and mediating the postindustrial city this collection argues that cinema and cities have become increasingly intertwined in the era of neoliberalism urban branding and accelerated gentrification examining a wide range of films from hollywood blockbusters to indie cinema it considers the complex evolving relationship between moving image cultures and the spaces policies and politics of us cities from new york los angeles and boston to detroit oakland and baltimore the contributors address questions of narrative genre and style alongside the urban contexts of production exhibition and reception discussing films including the friends of eddie coyle 1973 cruising 1980 desperately seeking susan 1985 king of new york 1990 inception 2010 frances ha 2012 fruitvale station 2013 only lovers left alive 2013 and doctor strange 2016 the latest offering from the reference guides to the world's cinema series this critical survey of key films actors directors and screenwriters during the silent era of the american cinema offers a broad ranging portrait of the motion picture production of silent film detailed but concise alphabetical entries include over 100 film titles and 150 personnel an introductory chapter explores the early growth of the new silent medium while the final chapter of this encyclopedic study examines the sophistication of the silent cinema these two chapters outline film history from its beginnings until the perfection of synchronized sound and reflect upon the themes and techniques established with the silent cinema that continued into the sound era through modern times the annotated entries alphabetically arranged by film title or personnel include brief bibliographies and filmographies an appendix lists secondary but important movies and their creators film and popular culture scholars will appreciate the vast amount of information that has been culled from various sources and that builds upon the increased studies and research of the past ten years in a history of american movies a film by film look at the art craft and business of cinema paul monaco provides a survey of the narrative feature film from the 1920s to the present the book focuses on 170 of the most highly regarded and recognized feature films selected by the hollywood establishment each oscar winner for best picture as well as those voted the greatest by members of the american film institute by focusing on a select group of films that represent the epitome of these collaborations monaco provides an essential history of one of the modern world's most complex and successful cultural institutions hollywood divided into three sections classic hollywood 1927 1948 hollywood in transition 1949 1974 and the new hollywood 1975 to the present monaco examines some of the most memorable works in cinematic history including the general wings bringing up baby gone with the wind citizen kane casablanca on the waterfront the searchers psycho west side story the godfather cabaret raging bull rain man toy story and saving private ryan this is the only book that thoroughly treats hollywood and the most significant movies that it has made simultaneously as the coming together of an art a craft and a business this approach provides unique insight into the workings of one of the most accomplished and successful art forms in human history the hollywood feature film the setting is 1920s berlin cultural heart of europe and the era's only serious cinematic rival to hollywood in his engaging study thomas saunders explores an outstanding example of one of the most important cultural developments of this century global americanization through the motion picture the invasion of germany by american films which began in 1921 with overlapping waves of sensationalist serials slapstick shorts society pictures and historical epics initiated a decade of cultural collision and accommodation on the one hand it fueled an impassioned debate about the properties of cinema and the specter of wholesale americanization on the other hand it spawned unprecedented levels of cooperation and exchange in berlin american motion pictures not only entertained all social classes and film tastes but also served as a vehicle for american values and a source of sharp economic competition hollywood in berlin correlates the changing forms of hollywood s contributions to weimar culture and the discourses that framed and interpreted them restoring historical contours to a leading aspect of cultural interchange in this century at the same time the book successfully embeds weimar cinema in its contemporary international setting the setting is 1920s berlin cultural heart of europe and the era s only serious cinematic rival to hollywood in his engaging study thomas saunders explores an outstanding example of one of the most important cultural developments of this century globa

this book introduces the reader to basic issues related to the phenomenon of american cinema it looks at american film history from the 1890s through the spring of 2020 but it does not always explore this history in a purely chronological way in fact it is not strictly speaking a history rather it is a cultural history which focuses more on topics and issues than on what happened when it begins with a profile of classical hollywood cinema as a unique economic industrial aesthetic and cultural institution it considers the experience of moviegoing the nature of hollywood storytelling and the roles played by the studio system the star system and film genres in the creation of a body of work that functions not only as entertainment but as a portrait of the relationship between an american national identity and an industrialized mass culture that has slowly evolved over the past century this book assumes that the reader has little or no formal training in film history theory or aesthetics it presents fairly basic concepts in such a way as to encourage discussion not so much of individual films but of films in general for this reason the book concentrates on large groupings of films on genres topics and periods of film history this textbook differs from the more traditional histories of the cinema for certain specific and important reasons over the past fifty years the field of film study has undergone a tremendous transformation this change has been spearheaded by the work of a new generation of scholars who challenge the traditional way in which film history has been written and taught introduction to film courses that fifty years ago taught film as art drew heavily upon the approaches of new criticism contemporary film courses now teach film not only as art but also as film and they attempt to situate film as an art form within a larger industrial economic social and cultural context they rely heavily on cultural studies new historicism psychoanalysis and other contemporary critical disciplines film history texts have changed over the years as well in the past histories consisted of simple chronological accounts of who did what and what happened when and of the stories of great men and their achievements and of straightforward accounts of the influence of technology and economics on the course of a history that unfolds in a linear fashion up to the present more recently film scholars have begun to rewrite these traditional histories creating what Thomas Elsaesser refers to as the new film history at its best this history is driven by a sophisticated theoretically informed revisionism it simply refuses to accept the easy answers to basic historical questions that had been offered up by past historians with the initial publication of American Cinema in 1994 the methods and discoveries of the new film history were applied to an introductory level text surveying the history of the American cinema this expansive three volume set investigates racial representation in film providing an authoritative cross section of the most racially significant films actors directors and movements in American cinematic history Hollywood has always reflected current American cultural norms and ideas as such film provides a window into attitudes about race and ethnicity over the last century this comprehensive set provides information on hundreds of films chosen based on scholarly consensus of their importance regarding the subject examining aspects of race and ethnicity in American film through the historical context themes and people involved this three volume set highlights the most important films and artists of the era identifying films actors or characterizations that were considered racist were tremendously popular or hugely influential attempted to be progressive or some combination thereof readers will not only learn basic information about each subject but also be able to contextualize it culturally historically and in terms of its reception to understand what average moviegoers thought about the subject at the time of its popularity and grasp how the subject is perceived now through the lens of history studies of classic Hollywood typically treat Hollywood films released from 1930 to 1960 as a single interpretive mass Veronica Pravadelli complicates this idea focusing on dominant tendencies in box office hits and Oscar recognized classics she breaks down the so called classic period into six distinct phases that follow Hollywood's amazingly diverse offerings from the emancipated females of the transition era and the traditional men and women of the conservative 1930s that replaced it to the fantastical fifties movie musicals that arose after anti classic genres like film noir and women's films Pravadelli sets her analysis apart by paying particular attention to the gendered desires and identities exemplified in the films availing herself of the significant advances in film theory and modernity studies that have taken place since similar surveys first saw publication she views hollywood through strategies as varied as close textural analysis feminism psychoanalysis film style and study of cinematic imagery revealing the inconsistencies and antithetical traits lurking beneath classic hollywood's supposed transparency the director of such classic hollywood films as In a Lonely Place Johnny Guitar and Rebel Without a Cause Nicholas Ray nevertheless remained on the margins of the american studio system throughout his career and despite his cult status among auteurist critics and cinephiles he has also remained at the margins of film scholarship Lonely Places Dangerous Ground offers twenty new essays by international film historians and critics that explore the director's place in the history of the hollywood industry and in the larger institution of cinema as well as a 1977 interview with Ray that has never before been published in its entirety in english in addition to readings of Ray's most celebrated films the book provides a range of approaches to his life and work engaging new questions of his cinematic authorship with areas that include history and culture politics and society gender and sexuality style and genre performance technology and popular music the collection also looks at Ray's lesser known and underappreciated films and devotes attention to the highly experimental We Can't Go Home Again his recently restored final film made in the 1970s with his students at Binghamton University State University of New York rediscovering what Ray means to contemporary film studies the essays show how his films continue to possess a vital power for film history and criticism and for film culture this vastly readable and richly illustrated volume examines film as art form technological innovation big business and cultural bellwether it takes in stars from Douglas Fairbanks to Sly Stallone auteurs from D.W. Griffith to Martin Scorsese and Spike Lee and genres from the screwball comedy of the 1930s to the hard body movies of the 1980s to the independent films of the 1990s combining panoramic sweep with detailed commentaries on hundreds of individual films Movie Made America is a must for any motion picture enthusiast placing cinematic representations of the jew within their historical context Bartov demonstrates the powerful political social and cultural impact of these images on popular attitudes he argues that these representations generally fall into four categories the jew as perpetrator as victim as hero and as anti hero examples range from film's early days to the present from europe israel and the united states widespread law enforcement or formal policing outside of cities appeared in the early 20th century around the same time the early film industry was developing the two evolved in tandem intersecting in meaningful ways much scholarship has focused on portrayals of the criminal in early american cinema yet little has been written about depictions of the criminal s antagonist this history examines how different on screen representations shifted public perception of law enforcement initially seen as a suspicious or intrusive institution then as a power for the common good engaging film criticism examines recent american cinema in relationship to its imaginative intertexts films from earlier decades that engage similar political and cultural themes this historical encounter provides an unexpected and exciting way of reading popular contemporary films eclectic pairings include the schwarzenegger action film true lies with the hitchcock classic north by northwest as well as the lampooned will smith comedy wild wild west with buster keaton s silent feature the general using a theoretically and historically informed brand of criticism engaging film criticism suggests that today s hollywood cinema is every bit as worthy of study as the classics foreign films once enjoyed a position of prominence on american theater screens by the start of world war i however the united states film industry was strong enough to challenge that foreign presence and foreign films in america have been insignificant ever since for about a century the hollywood cartel has dominated the production distribution and exhibition of movies domestically and around the world this work traces the history of the foreign film in america from its domination in the early days to its low standing in the present looking at the attempts made by foreign producers to increase their presence on american cinema screens the responses by hollywood to those attempts and the oligopoly of hollywood s few producers the work discusses the cultural differences between foreign artistic expression and the commercialism of the american film and analyzes hollywood s explanations for the lack of a foreign presence americans have unique tastes they don t like subtitles foreign films are immoral or badly made trade union pressure and so on an appendix detailing the all time gross earnings of foreign language films and a full bibliography conclude the work which is illustrated with stills and posters
