This open access book addresses the current debate on extended working life policy by considering the influence of gender and health on the experiences of older workers. Bringing together an international team of scholars, it tackles issues as gender, health status and job occupational characteristics that structure the capacity and outcomes associated with working longer. The volume starts with an overview of the empirical and policy literature, continues with a discussion of the relevant theoretical perspectives, includes a section on available data and indicators, followed by 25 very concise and unique country reports that highlight the main extended working life (EWL) research findings and policy trajectories at the national level. It identifies future directions for research and addresses issues associated with effective policy making. This volume fills an important gap in the knowledge of the consequences of EWL and it will be an invaluable source for both researchers and policymakers.

Offers case studies of women as constitution makers in nine countries, clarifying the gender aspects of participatory constitutionalism.

This book rethinks the study of European cinema in a way that centres on students and their needs. In a comprehensive volume introducing undergraduates to the main discourses, directions and genres of twenty-first century European film, importantly this collection is the first of its kind to apply a transversal approach to European cinema, bringing together the East and the West while providing a broad picture of key trends, aesthetics, genres, national identities and transnational concerns. Lewis and Canning's collection effectively addresses some of the most pressing questions in contemporary European film such as ecology, migration, industry, identity, disability, memory, auteurship, genre, small cinemas and the national and international frameworks which underpin them. Combining accessible original research with a thorough grounding in recent histories and contexts, each chapter includes key definitions, reflective group questions and a summative case study. Overall this book makes a strong contribution to our understanding of recent European cinema, making it an invaluable resource for lecturers and students across a variety of film centred modules.
