the central contention of the new atheism of richard dawkins daniel dennett sam harris and christopher hitchens is that the centuries old war between science and religion is now over and that religion has lost but as edward feser shows in the last superstition there is not and never has been any war between science and religion at all there has instead been a conflict between two entirely philosophical worldviews the classical teleological vision of plato aristotle augustine and aquinas on which purpose or goal directedness is as inherent a feature of the material world as mass or electric charge and the modern mechanical vision of descartes hobbes locke and hume according to which physical reality is comprised of nothing more than purposeless meaningless particles in motion this modern mechanical view of nature has never been proved and its hold over the contemporary intelligentsia owes more to rhetorical sleight of hand and political expediency than to rational argument for as feser demonstrates the existence of god the immortality of the soul and the traditional natural law conception of morality are rationally unavoidable given the classical teleological philosophical world view hence modern secularism crucially depends on the false insinuation that the mechanical philosophy has somehow been established by science moving beyond what he regards as the pointless and point missing dispute between intelligent design advocates and darwinians fesser holds that the key to understanding the follies of the new atheism lies not in quibbles over the evolutionary origins of this or that biological organ but in a rethinking of the philosophical presuppositions of scientific method itself back to first principles in particular it involves a recovery of the forgotten truths of classical philosophy when this is accomplished religion can be seen to be grounded firmly in reason not blind faith and despite its moral and intellectual pretensions the new atheism is exposed as resting on very old errors together with an appalling degree of intellectual dishonesty philosophical shallowness and historical theological and scientific ignorance book jacket
