a history of our time

the annual world bank conference on development economics abcde brings together the world's leading scholars and development practitioners for a lively debate on state of the art thinking in development policy and the implications for the global economy the 17th conference was held in dakar senegal on january 27 2005 the theme of the conference was growth and integration which was divided into five topics growth and integration financial reforms economic development trade and development and investment climate why economists attempts to help poorer countries improve their economic well being have failed since the end of world war ii economists have tried to figure out how poor countries in the tropics could attain standards of living approaching those of countries in europe and north america attempted remedies have included providing foreign aid investing in machines fostering education controlling population growth and making aid loans as well as forgiving those loans on condition of reforms none of these solutions has delivered as promised the problem is not the failure of economics william easterly argues but the failure to apply economic principles to practical policy work in this book easterly shows how these solutions all violate the basic principle of economics that people private individuals and businesses government officials even aid donors respond to incentives easterly first discusses the importance of growth he then analyzes the development solutions that have failed finally he suggests alternative approaches to the problem written in an accessible at times irreverent style easterly's book combines modern growth theory with anecdotes from his fieldwork for the world bank this is an attempt to derive broad strategic lessons from the diverse experience with economic growth in last fifty years the paper revolves around two key arguments one is that neoclassical economic analysis is a lot more flexible than its practitioners in the policy domain have generally given it credit in particular first order economic principles protection of property rights market based competition appropriate incentives sound money and so on do not map into unique policy packages reformers have substantial room for creatively packaging these principles into institutional designs that are sensitive to local opportunities and constraints successful countries are those that have used this room wisely the second argument is that igniting economic growth and sustaining it are somewhat different enterprises the former generally requires a limited range of often unconventional reforms that need not overly tax the institutional capacity of the economy the latter challenge is in many ways harder as it requires constructing over the longer term a sound institutional underpinning to endow the economy with resilience to shocks and maintain productive dynamism ignoring the distinction between these two tasks leaves reformers saddled with impossibly ambitious undifferentiated and impractical policy agendas nber website
