regional trade agreements rtas have proliferated around the world in the past two decades and now nearly all members of the wto are party to at least one besides tariffs and rules of origin regulating trade in goods many rtas now include provisions on services investments technical barriers to trade and competition rules as well as a host of issues not directly related to trade the geographic reach of rtas is expanding with transcontinental agreements spreading forcefully alongside intra regional agreements multilateralizing regionalism was the title of a major conference held from 10 12 september 2007 at the wto in geneva brought together in this publication the conference papers achieve two things first they marshall detailed new empirical work on the nature of the spaghetti bowl and the problems it poses for the multilateral trade system second they contribute fresh and creative thinking on how to tame the tangle of regional trade agreements american historians have long been fascinated by the peopling of north america in the seventeenth century who were the immigrants and how and why did they make their way across the ocean most of the attention however has been devoted to british immigrants who came as free people or as indentured servants primarily to new england and the chesapeake and to africans who were forced to come as slaves trade in strangers focuses on the eighteenth century when new immigrants began to flood the colonies at an unprecedented rate most of these immigrants were german and irish and they were coming primarily to the middle colonies via an increasingly sophisticated form of transport wokeck shows how first the german system of immigration and then the irish system evolved from earlier haphazard forms into modern mass transoceanic migration at the center of this development were merchants on both sides of the atlantic who organized a business that enabled them to make profitable use of underutilized cargo space on ships bound from europe to the british north american colonies this trade offered german and irish immigrants transatlantic passage on terms that allowed even people of little and modest means to pursue opportunities that beckoned in the new world trade in strangers fills an important gap in our knowledge of america s immigration history the eighteenth century changes established a model for the better known mass migrations of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries which drew wave after wave of europeans to the new world in the hope of making a better life than the one they left behind a story that is familiar to most modern americans the present publication of re ports and discussions stems from the fourth session of the hague zagreb colloquium held at eernewoude in the netherlands the preceding three sessions were held at stubice toplice in yugoslavia 1974 zeist in the netherlands 1976 and again in yugoslavia at opatija 1978 the fourth session was originally planned for may 1980 on the eve of the meeting the then president of the socialist federal republic of yugoslavia the late marshall j b tito passed away on hearing the news of the marshall s death the organizing committee of the hague zagreb colloquium immediately decided that the session should not then be held the postponement lasted in fact a whole year the fourth session was convened at eernewoude in may 1981 for the eernewoude session the formula that had produced such excellent results in the previous conferences was maintained four topics of international trade law were thoroughly discussed on the basis of reports submitted by scholars from the various legal systems represented at the conference apart from the yugoslav and dutch participants scholars from the united kingdom the federal republic of germany belgium and norway took part in the discussions be it in the capacity of reporter of chairman or as expert in the field covered by the colloquium the law of international trade a student competition had again been organised and the members of the win ning teams from yugoslavia and from the netherlands were among the participants the aviation industry is being transformed by the use of unmanned aerial vehicles or drones commercially militarily scientifically and recreationally national regulations have generally failed to keep pace with the expansion of the fast growing drone industry aviation law and drones unmanned aircraft and the future of aviation traces the development of aviation laws and regulations explains how aviation is regulated at an international and national level considers the interrelationship between rapidly advancing technology and legislative attempts to keep pace and reviews existing domestic and international drone laws and issues including safety security privacy and airspace issues against this background the book uniquely proposes a rationale for and key provisions of guiding principles for the regulation of drones internationally provisions of which could also be implemented domestically finally the book examines the changing shape of our increasingly busy skies technology beyond drones and the regulation of that technology the world is on the edge of major disruption in aviation drones are just the beginning given the almost universal interest in drones this book will be of interest to readers worldwide from the academic sector and beyond
